

CHITALPA x TASHKENTENSIS 'Pink Dawn' CHITALPA

This fast growing hybrid of the common desert willow of the Southwest (Chilopsis linearis) and the midwestern native Catalpa produces showy terminal clusters of large pink, orchid-like flowers from summer till fall. The leaves are slightly broader than the desert willow and considerably smaller than the Catalpa. Mature trees may range from 20 to 30 feet in height and width. This deciduous tree is somewhat brittle and does best in protected locations. Plant in full sun and well-drained soil. Hardy to 0°F. USDA Zone 6.
