

DODONAEA VISCOSA HOP BUSH

This large evergreen shrub is native to Arizona and throughout the warmer regions of the Southwest. It has long, narrow, resinous, medium-green leaves. The inconspicuous flowers are followed by interesting chartreuse, papery, 3-winged fruit. Hop bush is a handsome plant useful as a screen or filler. Mature plants may grow to 12 feet tall and 10 feet wide. It is tolerant of full sun or part shade conditions. Hop bush requires little care or pruning, but will tolerate shearing if desired.
