

DROSANTHEMUM SPECIOSUM 'ROSEA' ICEPLANT

This durable groundcover is well-suited to growing under desert trees and in other partial shade areas. It forms a dense, flat mat of sparkly succulent green leaves. Plants typically stay under 1 foot tall and 3 feet across. Shocking pink-purple blooms cover this plant from mid-spring to summer, creating a blanket of intense color and attracting bees. The spreading habit is best suited for rock gardens or raised planters where the plant can be appreciated up close and personal. It will not tolerate foot traffic or poor drainage.
