

VITEX AGNUS-CASTUS 'MONTROSE PURPLE' CHASTE TREE, MONK'S PEPPER TREE

Long, narrow spikes of purple flowers cover this plant in the summer months. These fragrant flowers attract bees, butterflies and hummingbirds. After blooming, narrow spikes of round, dark brown seeds are produced. Monks in southern Europe and Asia, where this tree is native, reportedly used the seeds of this plant as a substitute for pepper. This tree is fairly messy, shedding all of its leaves in the fall, and dropping old flowers and seeds throughout the year. However, its aromatic green leaves and long, profuse bloom period go a long way toward making up for the litter! Chaste tree is very shrub-like, but can be shaped into a tree form, eventually reaching a mature size of 25 feet tall and wide. It handles hot summers like a champ, as well as tolerating temperatures below -10° F. USDA Zone 6.
